Life is Interesting, Politics Her Field

Mrs. E. Hagie Rounds Out Century of Living

The Golden Rule ... "do unto others" ... is her philosophy, and it has produced 100 years of worthwhile living.

She is Mrs. Eugene Hagie, a Torrance resident for thirty years, who now resides at Earlwood Convalescent Home, 20820 Earl St., Torrance.

Last Sunday, Mrs. Hagie's 100th birthday was celebrated with a gala party at the convalescent home given by the staff there.

The centenarian was born Aug. 2, 1864 in Wau-pauca County, Wis. She was married in 1910 in Mul-tilville, Wis.

Mrs. Hagie is the mother of Verna Gustad, 3154 Holly Park Circle, Inglewood; Cleo Gustman, Las Vegas, Nev.; Earl Conlin, Woodridge, Va.; Vera Baer, Sheboygan, Wis.; and Charles Hagie, O'Clair, Wis.

She has three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Prior to coming to Torrance, Mrs. Hagie lived in Inglewood for 12 years.

She is a member of the Darby Park Senior Citizens Club, which is also planning a party to celebrate her 100th birthday.

Here for the birthday party on Sunday were her daughter, Verna Gustad, Inglewood; Cleo Gustman, Las Vegas; Charles Hagie, O'Clair, Wis.; and Earl Conlin, Woodridge, Va.

Enjoying perfect health, the "birthday girl" is a leader in all activities at the convalescent home. She attends all parties and musicals. She dresses every day and last Friday went out for a permanent in preparation for her birthday celebrations.

News broadcasts are a "must" for her since she is an avid Republican. She cast her first vote for Warren G. Harding and is studying the presidential picture today. "I'm still thinking, but I'm pretty sure Barry Goldwater will get my vote this year when they take me to the polls," she beamed as she contended that "the world is a wonderful place and my 100th birthday party was the greatest ever."

At Crestline

Mr. and Mrs. Don Wolf had at their weekend guests at their home at Crestline, Mr. and Mrs. Charles King, also of Torrance.

'Rank Has Its Privileges ...'

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 10 years old who would like you to answer a question for me if you can. Why do parents have two sets of laws, one for themselves and one for their children? I am thinking of one special law in our house which is awful.

When I spill something on the tablecloth, especially grape juice, I have to leave the dining room and go eat in the kitchen on the cooking board. When one of my parents spills something they say, "Oh, for Heaven's sake" — and go right on eating at the table and that is all there is to it.

Why can parents do something and think it is just fine but when their children do the very same thing they get punished? Will you please answer this? Thank you.—BOBBY

Dear Bobby: There is an old army expression that goes like this "R.H.I.P." It means "Rank has its privileges." And it's the same way in life, so you'd better face up to it.

When an adult spills something on the tablecloth it is called an accident. When a child spills something it is called carelessness. I don't see any difference myself. Furthermore, I don't think a child should be sent away from the table when he spills something—not even grape juice.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a neighbor who is so helpful I am just about ready to wring her neck. I work days and my husband works nights. I leave the house at 8:30 a.m. The minute I leave for work this neighbor comes over to make my husband a "nice hot breakfast" and clean up my kitchen.

Sometimes she waxes the linoleum and rearranges my cupboards. One day she changed everything around and I went crazy looking for the mustard.

I don't want this woman in my house and have told her so. It goes in one ear and out the other. She says she enjoys being neighborly.

In the meantime the neighbors have plenty to say and I'm beginning to wonder if it is just gossip—or if perhaps this woman
